IN THE not too distant future, Aruba's Palm Beach will front one of the most ultra-modern hotels in the Caribbean. Pictured here is a model of the hostelry created by Architect Morris Lapidus of Miami. On the left is the beach and on the right is the new boulevard. The second lane has yet to be added. According to Mr. Lapidus, the hotel should be ready Jan. 1, 1958 at a cost of approximately Fls. 3,000,000.
